RESEARCH INTERESTS

My primary research goal is to leverage large-scale human-agent interaction histories to build agents capable of reliable decision-making in open-ended tasks, distilling the decision experience scattered throughout these histories into reusable representations that reshape the agent's decision distribution. I am particularly interested in Agent Memory Construction and Retrieval (efficient memory inference from implicit interaction data, agent memory architectures, adaptive retrieval strategies for open-ended tasks), LLM Reasoning Enhancement and Generalizable Learning (causal interpretability, generalization across task distributions).
